He will meet with the Highway department soon. He suggested to the other members to meet with their departments on their budgets if there are any big changes so the Council can be prepared for budget hearings.

TAX ABATEMENTS- ANNUAL REVIEW

Auditor Pam Goffinet explained that the abated company is to file a CF-1 with the corresponding entity for which they filed a certified SB-1. The CF-1's has to be filed by May 15th to stay in compliance with their original abatement filed. All CF-1's and corresponding SB-1's was mailed to the Council for their review.

The CF-1's filed for the County are: Indiana Municipal Power Agency Personal Property and Real and Personal Property of ATTC. Auditor Goffinet commented saying they were all in compliance as to filing their CF-1's on time. Pam informed them that if they have no changes, they could vote on all of them at one time if they wished.

The Council decided to take Indiana Municipal Power Agency separate and take all the ATTC abatements together. Luke read off the list, years of abatement on and the percentage to be abated. Luke mentioned that in 2019 he had an issue with IMPA over a clerical error on the assessed value and sent it back to them. He commented that this is still an issue.

There is a proposal of $1,100.00 wage for each employee that includes social security and retirement starting for work beginning July 1, 2021 to the end of the year. This will go to 13 employees. The Sheriff will be from the Inmate Housing fund for a total of $18,900.00. Paul made the motion of intent for the supplemental wage, seconded by Danny. Motion carried 7-0. Eric thanked the Council members.

REVIEW OF FINANCE STUDY

Luke said he came across a study by the Indiana Fiscal Policy Institute that came out in June 2020. It is titled Capacity Cost Indexes for Indiana local governments 2002 and 2018. This study is by Larry Deboer of Purdue Extension. He does a lot of great work for local governments. Luke said he wanted to highlight a couple of points from the study especially at this point in time that we are in right now.

Luke read part of the summary that the revenue capacity service cost index measures the ability of local governments to provide public services at average tax rates. The method uses county by county taxable income, property values, and state aid for schools and roads compared to per capita cost adjusted for the percentage of the county LIT population living in cities and towns versus unincorporated areas along with factors like school enrollment and road miles. The capacity cost index distills this data into a single value a negative index means more difficulty covering expenditures without raising taxes. A positive index means more flexibility to adjust taxes and spending through all local governments who operate under state-imposed limits on income taxes and property tax levies. So, Perry County according to this study has the eighth lowest index score in all 92 counties with a negative $270 index score. That is equal to a negative 9.34 percent of the $2,890 average of the state. So basically, this means that local governments in Perry County can't or can provide the average level of service at higher tax rates or provide less than average levels of service at average tax rates. He said actually we are at the same level we were into from 2002 to 2018, so, overall, the fiscal condition of all units of government and Perry County really hasn't changes and is still in real good condition. The study also said that there are long-term declines in traditional manufacturing employment limited capacity growth in many industrial counties. A large number of Indiana counties have heavy concentrations of manufacturing in the 1970's but jobless losses over the next 40 years limited growth of taxable income and assessed value. This widened the gap between revenue capacity and cost. Increased property tax rates caused large revenue losses to tax caps especially in places that weren't as successful in replacing jobs with employment in other sectors. So, in 1972 to 2017, manufacturing and in Perry County dropped by at least 7 ½ % and the average of all counties that was studied was 22 ½%. Luke finished by saying we are still not in a good financial place and our negative 270 is the 8th lowest score in the State, which is not the worst but not where we need to be. He commented that as said before, a negative index means difficulty in covering expenditures without raising taxes which is kind of the place we are in right now. He said with this low score we have; we are going to have some tough decisions in the next couple of years in terms of finances.
